

Empowering Employees to Work From Home

Are your employees getting the job done at home?

One of the big challenges facing organizations today is the best way to empower your employees to work from home.

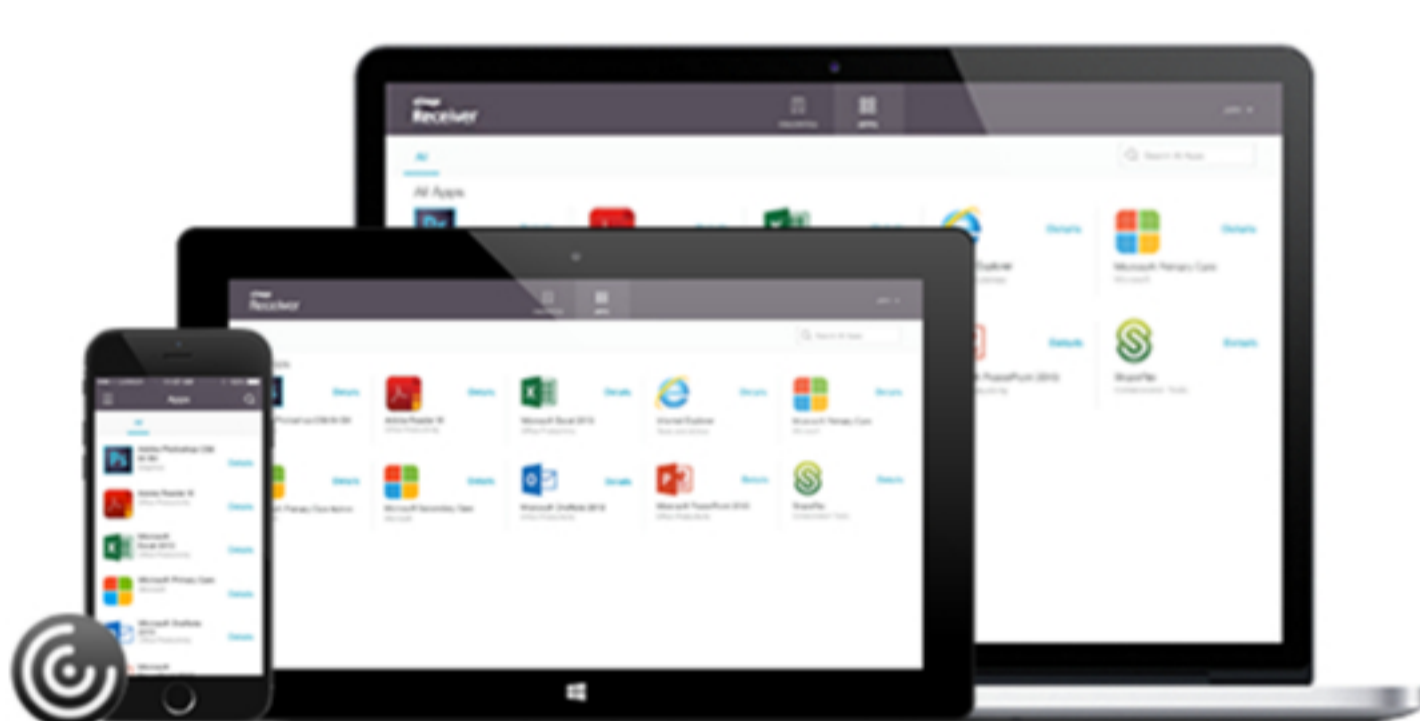

Until a month ago, accomodating remote staff seemed like something only Fortune 500 or Tech companies worried about.

Today, providing your employees with the tools to work remotely might determine whether your organization weathers the storm or not.

How can JDL help?

Since JDL was founded we have approached technology with a future-forward thought process. This has allowed us to provide our clients with Citrix Virtual Desktops in the cloud or to completely convert them to server-less environments.

These solutions have allowed organizations to empower their employees with the ability to work from home when needed. We work closely with each client to determine what method for remote work is best for them.

How do your employees answer their work phone?

Answering the phone remotely can pose a problem if your organization is still using an older phone system. This might mean your employees don't have the ability to take calls when they are away from the office.

Our 3CX Phone Solution will allow your employees to answer and place calls from their work line anywhere and at any time. This type of flexibility means work doesn't have to stop just because you're not in the office.
